Antwerp, March 31, 2022 – The workplace is critical to business success. To create high-performance post-pandemic work environments that optimally support a mobile and distributed workforce, workplace professionals today require better tools, better data, and better analytics. This can be achieved by seamlessly integrating cloud software and IoT-related technologies. The result? A unified solution that provides more actionable and dynamic insights than traditional IWMS. That solution now has a name: Spacewell Workplace.

“We’re very happy to launch the new global Workplace solution now,” said Gilles Ghysaert, Product Strategy Manager at Spacewell. “Workplace is high on the agenda of many organizations and we’re committed to helping them adapt flexibly to the post-pandemic world of work and remain resilient to change.”

“This rebranding effort brings together Axxerion’s advanced workflows and Cobundu’s leading IoT functionality to enable greater automation throughout facilities management and the employee experience” stated Joy Trinquet, Smart Building Industry Analyst at Verdantix. “Executives are looking to leverage more real-time data on office occupancy, space utilization and asset performance to enable smarter workflows to improve building operations and workplace experience.”

Veronika Korchunova, Product Marketing Manager at Spacewell, commented: “Research firm Verdantix recently named Spacewell a leader in both IWMS and IoT platforms for smart buildings. With the connected Workplace solution we bring together the best of both worlds: by integrating across both platforms, Spacewell Workplace provides real-time access to high-quality data, supporting real estate and facility managers, as well as service providers, to create healthy, sustainable and people-centric environments where employees can do their best work.”

In addition, the Axxerion real estate baseline rebrands to Spacewell Real Estate. This solution is aimed at commercial real estate managers in specific geographies and is independent from Spacewell Workplace.

With its product portfolio repositioning, Spacewell shows its continued commitment to providing all building and workplace stakeholders with the insights they need to recast their workplaces for the future of work. Whether that workplace is an office building, a hospital floor, a logistics warehouse, or any other type of facility.
