Shaping Digitalization: Nemetschek Group with Five Brands at Digital Construction Week 2022

Munich, May 17, 2022 – “Innovation in the Built Environment” is the key theme of this year’s Digital Construction Week. The Nemetschek Group brands Bluebeam, dRofus, Graphisoft, Solibri and Vectorworks are presenting their innovative software solutions for the entire construction lifecycle at the key industry event, 18-19 May in London.

From digital twins, automation, and artificial intelligence, to augmented reality, information management, robotics and more: Digital Construction

Week is dedicated to the developments transforming the construction industry, putting the spotlight on the tech and tools solving the built environment's most pressing challenges. With more than 300 expert speakers on stage, DCW is an important event for stakeholders in the construction industry.

The Nemetschek Group, one of the world's leading software providers for the AEC/O and media & entertainment industries, will showcase its solutions on a total of five booths across the event hall: Bluebeam (DE59), dRofus (DC61), Graphisoft (DB66), Solibri (DB60), and Vectorworks (DC63). Imerso and Reconstruct, two highly innovative startups that the Nemetschek Group is investing in, will also be present at the booths. In addition, the Nemetschek Group is sponsor of the DCW lounge, creating a platform for exhibitors and visitors to meet and exchange ideas.

“The Digital Construction Week is a key event for us in the UK market. We are excited to meet our customers and partners, at our different booths or at the DCW lounge”, says Yves Padrines, CEO of the Nemetschek Group. “Together with five of our brand companies and two startups we will be showing our state-of-the-art innovations along the entire construction lifecycle.”
